THE RYRON STORY.

The October number of The Quarterly Review has a very able article on the Byron controversy. In it are published for the first time the following letters from Lady Byron to Mrs. Leigh, which, as far as negative evidence can do it, completely dispose of the accusation against the latter

The first, not dated, was evidently written by Lady Byron in January, 1816, shortly before she left for Kirby Mallory, her sister-in-law being then under the same roof with her. Mrs. Leigh remained with Lord Byron in Piecadilly for several weeks after the departure of Lady Byron, and only left him when she found she could be of no further use to either party.

"'You will think me very foolish, but I have tried two or three times and cannot talk to you of your departure with a decent visage—so let me say one word in this way, to spare my philosophy. With the expectations which I have, I never will nor can ask you to stay one moment longer than you are inclined to do. It would be the worst return for all I ever received from you. But, in this at least, I am "truth itself" when I say that whatever the situation may be, there is no one whose society is dearer to me, or can contribute more to my happiness. These feelings will not change under any circumstances, and I should be greeved if you did not understand them. Should you hereafter condemn me, I shall not love you less. I will say no more. Judge for yourself about going or staying. I wish you to consider yourself about going or staying. I wish you to consider yourself, if you could be wise enough to do that for the first time in your life,—Thine.

"Addressed on the cover 'To the Hon Mrs. Leigh."

"Kirby Mallory, Jan. 16, 1816 (the day after she left Loudon).

"My Dearest A.: It is my great comfort that you are

" 'MY DEAREST A .: It is my great comfort that you are

"Kirby Mallory, Jan. 23, 1816.
"Dearest A.: I know you feel for me as I do for you, and perhaps I am better understood than I tomk. You have been, ever since I know you, my best comforter, and will so remain, unless you grow tired of the slice, which may well be." "" Jan. 25, 1816.

"'My Dearest Augusta: Snall I be still your aister? I must resign my rights to be se considered; but I don't think that will make any difference in the kindness I have so uniformly experienced from you."

"'My Dearest Augusta: You are desired by your brother to ask if my father has acted with my concurrence in proposing a separation. He has. It cannot be supposed that, in my present distressing situation, I am capable of stating in a detailed manner the reasons which will not only justify this measure, but compel me to take it; and it never can be my wish to remember unnecessarily [sic) those injuries for which, however deep, I feel no resentment. I will now only recall to Lord Byron's mind lie avowed and insurmountable aversion to the married state, and the desire and determination he has expressed ever since its commencement to free himself from that bondage, as finding it quite insupportable, though candidly acknowledging that no effort of duty or affection has been wanting on my part. He has too painfully convinced me that all these attempts to contribute toward his happiness were wholly useless, and most unwelceme to him. I inclose this letter to my father, wishing it to receive his sanction. Ever yours most affectionately.

"A. I. Byron."

"'I hope, my dear A., that you would on no account withhold from your brother the letter which I sent yesterday, in answer to yours written by his desire; particularly as one I have received from himself to-day renders it still more important that he should know the contents of that addressed to you.—I am, in haste, and not very well, yours most affectionately, "A. I. BYRON."

"'Kirby Mallory, Feb. 14, 1816.

"'The present sufferings of all may yet be repaid in blessings. Do not despair absolutely, dearest; and leave me but enough of your interest to afford you any consolation, by partaking of that sorrow which I am most unhappy to cause that unintentionally. You will be of my opinion hereafter, and at present your bitterest reproach would be forgiven; though Heaven knows you have considered me more than a thousand would have done—more than anything but my affection for B, one most dear to you, could deserve. I must not remember these feelings. Farewell: God bless you, from the bottom of my heart.

LITERARY ITEMS.

M. Paul de St. Victor has commenced in the Moniteur Universel a series of articles on "The Women of Goethe." He begins with Frederica, the heroine, if we may call her so, of the poet's autobiography, Goethe's first love and first victim. The sketch is charmingly written, and gives promise that the series will be worth

Mr. Putnam's volume of "Sermons, Conferences, and Addresses, by Pere Hyacinthe," translated by the Rev. Leonard W. Bacon, will be ready in a few days. It contains the address before the Peace League which was the numediate cause of Father Hyacinthe's rupture with the Carnelite Order, six lectures on the relation between Christianity and Civil Society, and several miscellaneous discourses. The Rev. E. A. Washburn, D. D., of Calvary Church, N. Y., contributes an introductory biographical sketch.

At the second call priges were a fraction lower on small transactions. After the call, New-York Central declined to 1913; Hudson, 172. This decline gave a weak tone to the market, and prices were all from 174 per cent lower than on the call. Rock Island sold at 1091; North-Western Common, 694; Michigan Southern, 914. At the close the market was stronger in sympathy with the favorable Bank Statement. The stockholders of the New-Yerk Central and Hudson River Roads meet at 1 o'clock on Monday to ratify the act of consolidation agreed upon. It was stated that in addition to the scrip dividend, the large cash surplus of the roads will be divided among the stockholders. Reports that an injunction would be obtained were freely circulated, but as the act empowering the consolidation has been fully complied with in every
